PT-141 (BREMELANOTIDE) INFORMATION DOCUMENT

WHAT IS PT-141, ANYWAY?

PT-141 (bremelanotide) is a 7-amino-acid peptide that works on the melanocortin receptors in the brain, the centres that drive desire and arousal. Unlike Viagra-type tablets, which act on blood flow, PT-141 works on the nervous system, so it supports desire itself and is used by both men and women. It is used for low libido, arousal difficulties and erectile dysfunction. Each prefilled pen holds 20mg: 20 doses for men or 10 doses for women.

INTRODUCING PT-141 AT mobivive

Bring back the spark with PT-141, the desire peptide that works through the brain rather than blood flow, for men and women. Doctor prescribed, discreetly delivered.

THE SCIENCE

PT-141 activates the MC3 and MC4 melanocortin receptors in the hypothalamus, which regulate sexual desire and arousal. This central action is different from PDE-5 inhibitors (such as Viagra or Cialis), which only increase blood flow and need arousal to work. Bremelanotide is the active ingredient of Vyleesi, approved in the USA for low sexual desire in women. The time to effect varies between people (often 2 to 6 hours) but tends to stay the same for the same person.

LET'S TALK SIDE EFFECTS

The most common side effects are nausea, facial flushing or warmth and headache. PT-141 can cause a small, short rise in blood pressure for a few hours after a dose, which is why it is not suitable if your blood pressure is not under control or you have heart disease.
